Another Night of One-Act Plays

The second offering of the Carmel players, whose production of little dramas at Arts and Crafts Hall on Friday evening, January 28, was so well received, has been scheduled for Friday evening, February 18, at the same hall and at the same hour—8:30, prompt.

Four one-act plays are in rehearsal, a fantasy, a tragedy, a comedy and a farce, and several new actors and actresses will be seen in the casts. Of the Carmel favorites Clara B. Liedig, Effie McLean, John Hilliard, Katharine Cooke, Marion Boke, William T. Kibbler and others who have been seen and applauded often, will be in various of the plays.

"The Wonder Hat," a Harlequinade, by Ben Hecht and Kenneth Sawyer, will be one of the longer offerings, with "Butterflies," a tragedy dramatized from the story of that name for this presentation by Mrs. Jeanne Burton.

"Overtones" is one of the two little comedies, with a strong bit of realism.

"The Gift," by Charles Van Riper, as the fourth of the series.

This will make up a program of diversified interest to the audience, and will present opportunities for the little group who, unorganized and independent, have sought to find and bring out new actors, new producers and new plays, to develop their ideas.

So that every one in the audience may be comfortably seated at this performance, only 170 tickets will be sold. That fills the hall without crowding. The advance sale, at the Bakery, Mrs. Hand's store, and the Pine Cone office, will start Monday morning next. It is suggested that the public secure tickets early, for it is an unwelcome duty to turn people away at the door, and there will be admission to only the 170 holders of the pasteboards. Should the advance sale be less than 170, the remaining seats will be sold to the early comers.

Warning is again given that the plays start promptly at half past eight and there will no seating of late arrivals until after the first curtain rings down.

New All Arts Club Gets Under Way

The first public meeting of the newly organized All Arts Club in San Francisco will be held in the Sorosis Club hall tomorrow evening, February 11, when a reception and promenada concert will take place, the programme being presented by artist members. Invitations may be obtained from members.

The officers for the first year are: Antoine de Vally, president; Charles A. Keeler, first vice president; Mme. Lucille Joullin, second vice president; John C. Manning, treasurer; Leah Hopkins, secretary; Lillian Birmingham, Bertha Springer Lee and Henry H. Taylor, directors. Among the charter members are Melville B Anderson, Olga Bigelow Barrett, Victor Bloudeau, Mr. and Mrs. Bogdon, Domenico Brescia, Mrs. Bulwell, Rose Welda Cailleau, Lucille Cavanagh Leimert, Alice Chittenden, Ada Clement Francesco Cornejo, Charles Caldwell Dobie, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lachmund, Adolphe Locher, Guilio Minetti, Emile Rosset, William Sparks and Julian R. Waybur.

Pine Needles

J. Davis of Vallejo has leased the Linda Vista cottage on Dolores street for a year.

Mrs. G. M. Eadie, who has been here for several weeks, is preparing to return East.

Thomas Vincent Cator, accompanied by his distinguished pupil, Vasia Anikeef, motored to Los Angeles last week on professional business.

Next Saturday is Lincoln's birthday, and a legal holiday. The local Postoffice will be open only one hour following distribution of the noon mail.

George Seideneck is moving his studio building from its present location, next the Library to Eighth and Monte Verde, where it will be remodeled.

The summer rush begins early in Carmel. Our realty offices are daily receiving many requests for the rental of houses. The order is—first come, first served.

The 1921 dog license tags are now available. The poundmaster will shortly begin gathering in the canines found running about without the necessary collar mark.

Mrs. Ida Mansfield Wilson, noted lecturer and writer on metaphysical subjects, has purchased a residence on Dolores street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, and will remain indefinitely in Carmel.

Cardinal Andrea Ferrari, Archbishop of Milan, died a few days ago. It is an interesting news item when we recall that the name of our local mission—San Carlos Borromeo—was that of another Archbishop of Milan.

The Pine Cone is in receipt of a number of communications from the Middle West asking for information concerning farm land for sale near Carmel and in Monterey county. If you know of such, let us know.

The Van Riper stone house, down on "The Point," being put up by contractor L. E. Gottfried, is nearing completion. It is a structure artistic in design and substantial as well. Such work as this is a credit not only to the owner but also to the builder.

Several of the recent numbers of the moving picture magazines carry articles and pictures of the filming of "Foolish Wives" at Point Carmel. Von Stroheim gets credit not only for producing a fine picture, but for providing in December the favorable weather for picture taking.

The city Board of Trustees meets tonight to discuss and take action on street improvement matters.

Henry Cowell, talented young pianist and frequent visit to Carmel, is here again for a brief stay.

The former Wilson cottage on Casanova street is being improved and made into headquarters for a riding school. G. W. Reamer is the contractor.

On with the sackcloth and ashes Yesterday was Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent. Easter comes on Sunday, March 27.

Mrs. Mary Falkner and her two daughters, who formerly resided here, are now living in Berkeley. Miss Helen is attending the University.

Mrs. Lillie C. Williams, wife of All Saints pastor, and her son, Millard, who has been residing in San Francisco for some time, are here to remain indefinitely.

The regular meeting of the Carmel Audubon Society will be held at the home of Miss M. E. Mower, San Antonio street, near Ocean avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Subject, "Bird Legislation."

The Morse family, who have been occupying the Norwood house on Casanova street for several months, are leaving this week for their home in Boston. They will stop in San Francisco for a short time.

Mrs. W. B. Swain and children have left the Marion cottage on Carmelo avenue and are staying at the El Monte Verde for a time before leaving for their home in Marysville. They have been joined by Mr. Swain.

Carmel friends of the Clampett family will learn with regret of the death of Ewing Clampett, which occurred in San Francisco last Friday. The young man was a native of Bloomington, Ill., and 28 years of age.

Polo is stirring up much interest this season. After the tournament comes to a close at Del Monte there will be matches played at Santa Barbara, Pasadena, and Coronado, with the annual Del Monte tournament scheduled for March 19 to April 3.

On Tuesday morning City Marshal England apprehended three fishermen of Monterey while cutting live pine trees on private property, for use as salmon fishing poles. Judge J. W. Hand recognized their plea, that they believed they were cutting trees on property upon which they held a permit and dismissed the charge.

THE PINE CONE is devoted to Art, Letters, Music and the Drama, as well as to the business and social affairs of Carmel and vicinity. News items and original contributions pertaining to these subjects will be welcomed by the News Editor.

Dickens' Birthday "Book Party"

One of those delightful big family affairs, for which Carmel is famous, was that given by the Reading Circle at Arts and Crafts Hall on Monday evening last.

It was the 109th birthday of Charles Dickens, and a "book party" was quite the appropriate manner in which to celebrate the event. About sixty books were represented.

Among the representations calling for special notice may be numbered, "Cranford," by six ladies in appropriate old-fashioned gowns; Belknap Bates as the "Girl of the Period;" Margaret Clute as "Amarelly of Clothes-Line Alley;" Miss E. A. McLean as "Cabbages and Kings;" W. C. Watts presented "Watt's Hymns."

The first prize went to young Bates, who guessed the largest number of books. John Navas won the booby prize.

Mrs. Sydney Yard read Sam Weller's Valentine, and Miss Ida A. Johnson's contribution was Kate Douglas Wiggins' delightful story of a railroad journey with Charles Dickens—

The whole affair was most successfully carried out, and the newcomers here were quickly made to feel that they "belong."

Valuable Addition to U. C. Library

The private library of the late Henry Morse Stephens, world historian, amounting to approximately 12,250 volumes, has been given to the University of California Library.

By the terms of the will of Professor Stephens the books are to be incorporated into the general library, collection, "in such a manner as to be most widely useful," and are not to be maintained as a separate entity.

The collection, containing the results of years of personal study and research of Professor Stephens, will be one of the most valuable additions to the university library yet received declares the university librarian. The remarkable parts of the collection will be the Kipling and Omah Khayyam works on which Professor Stephens was considered an authority. The most valuable of the collection is said to be the series of volumes relating to the British in India, contained in the Kipling group.

Making Carmel Better Known

An illustrated booklet, to be published in the interests of Carmel, is in a state of preparation. The Pine Cone has undertaken this enterprise, prompted by suggestions received from residents who are willing to assist in its financing. They believe that, inasmuch as Carmel is not a business community—in its strict sense—their interests will be best served by those who reside here. All manner of paid outside publicity should be avoided.

St. Valentine's Day Comes on Tuesday

IT WAS an enterprising young girl who first captured the valentine trade for America. Her name was Esther Howland. After graduating from Mount Holyoke seminary she resided with her father, who was a stationer in Worcester, Mass. In 1849 she received from England a manufactured valentine, the first she had ever seen. It interested her so much that she decided to see whether she could make some of these valentines and find a sale for them.

She collected some lace paper, some printed verses and sentimental pictures, fixed up a few valentines and gave them to her brother, who was a traveling salesman for a grocery store. To her amazement her brother returned with orders for $5,000 worth of valentines! Her astonishment knew no bounds. She quickly got together some girl friends, taught them what she knew about valentines and commenced a prosperous trade that was to reach the one hundred thousand dollar mark.

First Love Missives.

It was a Frenchman who first conceived the idea of composing valentines in verse. Charles, Duke of Orleans, was taken prisoner by the English at the battle of Agincourt, in 1415. He was consigned to the Tower of London, where he spent the next twenty-five years of his life. But the cold walls of his dungeon could not completely dampen his sentimental nature, and from his gloomy vault came sunny little verses to the number of sixty, which are still to be seen among the royal papers in the staid old British museum. One of them reads:

Wilt thou be mine? Dear love, reply.
Sweetly consent or else deny.
Whisper softly, none shall know—
Wilt thou be mine, love? Aye or no?

Spite of fortune we may be
Happy by one word from thee.
Life flies swiftly. Ere it go,
Wilt thou be mine, love Aye or no?

England at once adopted the fad which its royal prisoner had set, and Valentine's day found the coaches more than usually laden with poetic outpourings of lovers, friends and even slight acquaintances.

Old Romance Recalled.

One of the most romantic histories of Valentine children is that of Lady Sarah Lennox, born on February 14, 1745. In fact, she apparently inherited a romantic temperament, for her own story is usually prefaced with a sketch of her parents' romance—by way of driving home the story's admonition, perhaps.

Her father's marriage was no more nor less than a bargain to cancel a gambling debt between the couple's parents. The young duke, then Lord March, was brought home from college to wed the plain little girl-bride just out of nursery. At the conclusion of the ceremony the indignant bridegroom fled to the continent with a tutor in tow, where he spent three years. On his return to London he carefully avoided going home, where he fancied a wrathful young woman was waiting to swoon at his arrival.

Instead, he went straight to the theatre and saw there a very handsome lady. He cursed his luck, but had breath left to ask who she might be. "Lady March, the toast of the season," informed his friends, to his utter astonishment. Then he blessed his luck, claimed his bride and, as it turned out, was very happy to the end. Her love was so great, too, that she died of grief for him after a year of widowhood.

Sentiment and Business.

Samuel Pepys has something to say in his famous diary about most of joys and disturbances, great and small, with which human nature is acquainted. Consequently one does not need to search very far to find allusions to Valentine's day and the customary pranks that it involved in the England of the seventeenth century.

On February 14, 1667, the following entry is made in the diary:

"This morning came up to my wife's bedside (I being up dressing myself) little Will Mercer to be her valentine, and brought her name written upon blue paper in gold letters, done by himself, very pretty; and we were both well pleased with it. But I am also this year my wife's valentine, and it will cost me five pounds; but that I must have laid it out if we had not been valentines."

America's Noted Valentine.

America's most noted valentine was General Winfield Scott Hancock, born February 14, 1824. The witching influence of the saint's festival hovering about him manifested itself in the culmination of his romance. In her "Reminiscences," written in old age, Mrs. Hancock (who was Miss Almira Russell) tells of her strange wedding and proves that, after all, the American girl has determination to rise above superstitions.

To start with, her wedding day was one of the stormiest of the winter. It hailed violently, thundered and blew a perfect gale. During the ceremony, which was held at her father's home in St. Louis, the lights went out three times and repeated the performance at the wedding reception. The guests were filled with terror for the young bride who was beginning life under such suggestively evil omens. And by way of enhancing the evil influences that appeared to be abroad the crowd outside the house got the word that the bride was wearing a spun glass dress, and their curiosity reached the point of mob violence before the police could beat them back to make room for the passage of guests.

But the bride laughed in the face of these witches' pranks and lived to share the honors that her husband's career brought him.

St. Valentine's Mission.

When winter's at his oldest
And coldest
And boldest,
Then cometh good St. Valentine,
To show that love is burning
And sighing and yearning,
And breathe upon the wintry earth
his tenderness divine.

When life is at its bleakest
And meekest
And weakest,
Then cometh good St. Valentine,
To show that love is rosy
And wistful eyed and cozy,
And breathe on every torpid heart
his tenderness divine.

COAST VALLEY BILLS DUE ON THE 15th

Coast Valleys Gas & Electric Company has issued notices reminding its customers that all gas and electric bills are due and payable within fifteen days after the end of the month. The most of its customers pay their bills within that period, and in fairness to those who do pay, promptly, the Manager of the company states that it will have no choice but to enforce the rule indiscriminately which requires payment of bills within the time prescribed by law. Delayed payments too frequently results in uncollectable bills which ultimately reflects in the cost of doing business and tends to increase rates for the people who do pay their accounts. The company feels that the fairest way to handle this business is to adhere to an absolutely non-discriminatory prompt collection policy for everyone, and it asks all of its customers to co-operate by paying their accounts between the first and fifteenth of the month at either of the Company's offices, 458 Alvarado Street in Monterey or 217 Grand Avenue in Pacific Grove.

On the fourth and fifth of the month Carmel patrons may pay at the office of the Carmel Development Company.

Next Saturday Lincoln's Birthday

Life of Great American President Has Furnished Inspiration to Every Boy Born Under the Starry Banner.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, sixteenth president of the United States, was born in Hardin county, Kentucky, on February 12, 1809, being the son of Thomas Lincoln, a laboring farmer. While he was still a boy, his father moved to Illinois; there Lincoln began life as a laborer in the bush, building rail fences—a circumstance which gained for him in after years the designation of "the rail splitter"—also working as a common sailor on the flat boats which navigated the Mississippi river. While thus employed he picked up a little learning, and gave all his spare time to reading what books came his way. He served as captain of militia during the Indian troubles in the Northwest and in 1834 was elected to the Illinois legislature. Three years later he was admitted to the bar, and met with much success as an advocate. In 1847 he was elected to congress, where he supported the Whig party and became conspicuous as an opponent of slavery. The Whig party was broken up after the presidential election of 1852, and two years later he appeared as leader of the newly organized Republican party. He made several unsuccessful attempts to obtain a seat in the senate. In 1860, however, he was raised to the highest office in the republic.

The national Republican convention met at Chicago in June of that year, and up to the eleventh hour it was supposed that Mr. Chase of the state of Ohio, and Mr. Bates of Missouri, would divide the votes of the western delegation; but they were suddenly abandoned, and Mr. Lincoln was brought forward in their stead. The local pressure was so great that he carried the nomination over Mr. Seward, and was elected president in November, 1860.

The result of the election was tremendous. Nearly all the southern states seceded from the Union before the new president was inaugurated. Then came the attack on Fort Sumter and the terrible Civil war, which for four long years devastated the southern states of the Union. Lincoln's tact and service during these four years are too well known to be recounted.

At the expiration of his term of office he was re-elected to the presidency, and lived to see the ultimate success of the federal arms, and the surrender of Richmond and the army of General Robert E. Lee. While on a visit to the Ford theater, Washington, April 14, 1865, Abraham Lincoln was shot through the head by an actor named John Wilkes Booth; he passed away on the following morning.

FLASHLIGHTS

But what a nervous place the world would be if everybody were a success.

It doesn't have to be a very slippery job for some men to fall down on it.

Places where a man may "drop inn" for 10 or 15 cents might be multiplied.

Usually the exact day you set for changing your daily program it rains and you can't.

Great men are usually kind; anybody can be as great as the greatest in that respect.

Bandits seldom kidnap anyone for ransom, because their storage facilities are so poor.

People are so eager for somebody else to take "just any kind of a job" if it is offered him.

Vanity is not so widespread. Thousands of those who win are in a state of life-long astonishment over it.

Almost anyone can make a fair stagger at singing a sentimental song, but only an artist can put over ragtime.

At breakfast father wants to talk about what he reads in the paper and mother wants to talk about the things that ought to be sent up from the store.

It doesn't follow that a rich man gets any more fun out of life than a poor man. The chances are that when he has to attend the meetings of boards of directors he'd much rather go fishing.

Some men who are so thrifty that they smoke a cigar to the point where they have to hold the stub of it on the end of a match will sit around and waste three hours of another man's time and think nothing of it.—

WHERE IS THE "DEFICIT"?

"No appropriation should be considered where the need is not urgent."
—Message of Governor Stephens to the 1917 Legislature.

The people voted, in November, additional State costs totaling $18,000,000.

Governor Stephens in his message to the 1921 legislature declares:

". . .it is because of this voluntary action of the people themselves that the financial difficulties referred to have arisen."

Let us Consider The Facts

State officials estimate our income for the next two years at $67,000,000
Charge up against this the 1919-1921 budget, which was $47,000,000, and add the $18,000,000 voted by the people for the next two years. The total is 65,000,000
We still would have left in the treasury . . . . $ 2,000,000

Two Million dollars left, after paying every cent the people of California ever voted to pay.

Two Million dollars left, after paying for every State expense at the rate we had to pay when costs were higher than they will be again for many years.

Two Million dollars left, after re-appropriating in full for the vast burden of "unnecessary duplications and unnecessary waste" which Governor Stephens admits now exists in the State government.

Two Million dollars left, after we Californians spend for our State government twice as much as the average citizen of other states.

Who Wants This Money?

Yet Governor Stephens declares "it is because of the voluntary action of the people themselves that the financial difficulties referred to have arisen."

Governor Stephens goes further. He goes $15,000,000 further.

After we have paid every dollar that we paid in 1919-21, and after we have paid every dollar we voted to pay at the November elections—after we have provided a surplus of $2,000,000 for emergencies, Governor Stephens calls for $15,000,000 more.

Other states are economizing. Illinois in one year has reduced her governmental costs $2,500,000.

Yet California State officials call upon the people for $15,000,000 above all amounts previously spent or now authorized.

Already California is spending vastly more than her sister states which are now reducing their budgets. The per capita government cost for actual running expenses (as distinct from interest and new investments) are shown by the 1919 U. S. census report to be as follows:

Average for all states,	$5.16
Illinois,	3.48
California,	7.76

These Things Are True

The people have created no deficit, and there is no deficit.

The extra $15,000,000 now demanded by state officials is over and above all appropriations ever made in the past and all new expenses authorized by the people. No increase of any tax rate is necessary.

Ask your legislator to demand that the state live within its income.

CARMEL PINE CONE

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

Editorial Opinion and Suggestion

Ocean avenue, dressed up, in accordance with the ambitious plans of the city fathers, should speedily bring a better equipped City Hall.

The attendance at Sunset School is steadily increasing. The present accommodations for pupils are notably inadequate. A bond election for funds to remodel and enlarge the building is the sole remedy. A visit to the school will confirm these statements. Visit now, and support the movement for a bond election in April.

Deference to artistic design in the erection of new buildings in Carmel is being observed in all sections of the city except on Ocean avenue. Public opinion is demanding that the Board of Trustees enact a building restriction to establish a standard for future building operations, at least on our main business thoroughfare.

The Carmel Pine Cone has entered upon the seventh year of its publication. It has been out of long dresses and knee pants for quite some time. Its originator, W. L. Overstreet, and his new "pardner," Arthur Coleman, are to be congratulated. This week's Pine Cone carried twelve pages, 4 col., full of most everything.—Pacific Grove Review.

Fourteen "ayes" and three "nos" in the Utah Senate in favor of a bill forbidding the sale of cigarettes and prohibiting the smoking of cigars and pipes in any public place, heralds the time (if the unreasoning minority continues to dominate the majority in our communities) when our diets will be regulated by statute and perhaps mince pie be taboo.

Although in the middle of the winter season, the scarcity of desirable and available dwellings is in evidence by the triangular residence change that occured last week. On the completion of the new Josselyn home that family moved in from the Tilton house, which was at once occupied by Mrs. Clute, and simultaneously the Walkington cottage on Camino Real, vacated by Mrs. Clute, was occupied by Mrs. H. J. Coleman and family.

The proposed legislative action to declare certain districts "noxious weed free areas" might, with much benefit to all California, include specific provision to eradicate poison oak. Great loss of time and much physical distress is continually caused by that pestiferous growth. A sustained vigorous campaign would destroy its present and prevent its future growth, thereby saving to out people and visiting tourists much comfort and money.

Interesting Art News

William Ritschel is to have an exhibiton of Carmel coast marines in Los Angeles this month.

J. W. Winkler, Roi Partridge and Ernest Haskell are among the etchers whose work has been included in an exhibit of prints now displayed at Cannell's in Los Angeles.

A. W. Best, Alice Best and H. C. Best, three California artists, have been holding a joint exhibition in Honolulu. The Bests are well known in Carmel. They are in Hawaii for several months.

Charles Keeler, Berkeley poet, recently lectured in Oakland, his subject being: "Shall We Make California the Center of World Leadership in Art?" Keeler declares America has a splendid opportunity to lead the old world countries in this regard and that California's climate, scenery and proximity to the Orient, give it the ascendency over all other parts of the country.

Whistler's exacting taste and true flair for old papers is shown by the distinctive lithographs now being exhibited—the gently seen, gossamer covered nudes, the smiths with their thumping darks, the refined line to which the artist reduced his London architecture and the bridges which fascinated his enthusiasm for Japanese art.

Art lovers will be pleased to know that Xavier Martinez, the Aztec artist, will display some of his splendid Monotypes and also some black and white drawings at the Print rooms in San Francisco. It is not often that this gifted artist displays his work on this coast. Mr. Martinez exhibits yearly in New York, where there is much demand for his pictures.

At the Montrosa Galleries, New York, Frederic Clay Bartlett is showing charming pictures of Chinese scenes. A score of paintings depicting the marginal cities of China—Hongkong, Canton, Shanghai and Peking—comprise an arresting series of travel notes. His color, which in effect is clear, is laid on in short separate strokes, which win a vigor of tone from the under hue peeping through the deliberate interstices.

Marjorie Driscoll in the San Francisco Chronicle says:

"Not the least interesting thing about E. Charlton Fortune and her work is her entirely same outlook upon the artistic world; an outlook which, with its absence of cant in phrases or action and its directness of vision, cannot help but manifest itself in her painting. Therefore when a Charlton Fortune exhibit is on view, as at present at the Helgesen galleries, an uncommonly good opportunity for profitable study is afforded those who are more than a little weary of the chatter of theorists."

The financial campaign of the San Francisco branch of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Society, long in preparation, was formally launched last week.

The purpose of the drive is to raise $50,000 in California—$30,000 in San Francisco—these being the quotas set in the national campaign now under way to finance the purchase of the historic Astor library building in New York city for use as a permanent home for the parent organization.

Music Matters

Signor Mancinelli, composer and conductor, died last week in Rome from apoplexy. Mancinelli was giving the last touches to his new opera, "Dream of Summer Night."

Uroff Corma of Catalonia, aged 3 years, who plays the piano with extraordinary skill, is the latest attraction at aristocratic tea parties in Madrid, Spain. The infant prodigy is placed by his nurse on the piano stool, whereupon he begins his performance without any trace of nervousness.

With the start of Willem Mengelberg's term as guest conductor of the National Symphony, the governing board of that organization recently paid a deserved tribute to the conductor of its previous concerts for the greater part of three seasons, Arthur Bodanzky. "The Directors feel," said their statement, "that the presence at the head of their orchestra of two of the greatest conductors in the world will establish New York as the musical mecca of concert goers, as it is now of opera."

Emma Nevada is said to have been the teacher of Sylvia Nelis, the Polly Peachum of both London and New York revivals of "The Beggar's Opera," given as originally it was 170 years ago. Miss Nelis, while new to America, was once before announced to appear, when, as an unknown English soprano, she was engaged for the Abern company in its final season at the Century. Lena Maitland, who sings Mrs. Peachum at the Greenwich Village Theatre, appeared on Broadway some fifteen years ago in "Veronique."

Materialism can never let art alone, but always wants to put the horse collar on it and make it haul something. There was a time when music was the handmaiden of the soul and was asked only to buoy our spiritual selves upon life's stormy sea. The most utilitarian service it was asked to perform was to soothe the savage breast, and then it was in some degrees brought down from its peak and set at the task of accompanying the fletchrizing in temples of gastronomy; next it was tried as an accelerator or discontented cows. Designed to facilitate the flow of soul it was found to facilitate the flow of milk. And now what do we hear? That music has been found "efficacious"—molling word—in therapeutics; good for boils, bunions, rheumatism, gout, corns and paresis. But perhaps it is for the best. If music can be of some use in the world instead of being a mere butterfly of emotion, it can better hold its own against all the wild tempests of jazz and syncopation.—Exchange.

Many of our soldiers, for some reason or other, stayed on in France, and an increasingly large number are coming back to France from America where they were demobilized. This in spite of every effort to dissuade them.

Earth Movements

California's coast range mountains, according to Geodetic surveys, creep in a northerly direction during a number of years and then, as that strain is relieved, rebound in the opposite direction. The sudden rebound movement of the underlying rocks, carrying the earth's crust with it, causes the earthquakes which from time to time affect the region.

Mt. Tamalpais, between 1854 and 1882, moved 5.4 feet northerly, and between 1882 and 1906, 4.6 feet further in the same direction.

In 1906, at the time of the slip on the San Andreas fault, which caused the San Francisco earthquake, Mt. Tamalpais sprang back suddenly to the south 6.6 feet.

Similar changes in the position, due at first to slow strain creep and then to sudden rebound, when the compression reaches the limit, determined by the strength of the rocks, are found to have taken place at other Geodetic stations.

This data indicates progress toward the discovery of laws governing the slow and sudden movements of the earth's crust and perhaps forecasts of earthquakes.

Miss Marion Hollins arrived recently from the Atlantic Coast and is the guest of Commander and Mrs. William G. Van Antwerp at Pebble Beach. Miss Hollins expects to erect a forest lodge on her homesite at that place. She enjoys the distinction of being among the few women in the country with a rating in the Polo Association.

SATISFIED

(Written for the Pine Cone).

Soft falls the light on oak and pine,
And dark green cypress trees,
My days seem growing more divine
Since God smiles on me.

Dark clouds that veiled the east at dawn
Are fading fast away;
Sunlight dazzle the early morn
Sweet southern breezes sway.

And larks by the roadside sing,
Piping enchantingly!
I find delight in everything
Since God smiles on me.

The cold storage egg is sometimes intensely human in the way it disappoints you.

You are mistaken, dearest Isabel. "Roll your own" is the slogan of a tobacco company.

To own one's own home should be the wish of everyone who lives in Carmel. If you own a lot here, put a house on it. If you don't own a lot, buy one now while land is cheap.

If you don't live in the house yourself, there is no question about renting it.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

Lida C. Schem's two-volume novel makes an exhaustive study of all phases and varieties of Germanism in the United States, from the downright traitor to the ardent and loyal American citizen. It is especially interesting to those who are concerned about the Americanization of immigrants, because it shows so clearly what the reactions of the newcomers are to the influences which begin to surround them almost as soon as they set foot in their new country.

Eugene Field's volume of verse and prose, "Culture's Garland," was published while the author was running his column, "Sharps and Flats," in a Chicago newspaper. That the volume did not pay the author well for his work is shown by the fact that in 1891 Field took two friends to luncheon, and when the modest check for the meal was handed him, remarked, "What a coincidence! I had payment today on last year's sale of 'Culture's Garland,' and to a cent the amount was the same as that of this check."

A scenario reader of one of the large photoplay corporations reports that manuscripts purporting to have been written by the ouija board are submitted to him in great numbers. One of the most remarkable instances of such spiritualistic activity occurred when Washington Irving picked out a psychic barber in Wisconsin as a medium to transmit O Henry's "Gift of the Magi" for immediate production. Omar Khayyam submitted one scenario through the planchette and Shakespeare submitted two.

In the course of her review of "Seed of the Sun," Gertrude Atherton says of the author:

"Wallace Irwin has written so continuously and with such uniform originality for the last eighteen years that it is doubtful if one reader in a thousand has taken note of his many and abrupt transitions. He can hardly be said to have 'developed' in the usual sense; he has merely shed one skin and put on another of a different texture and hue; doing a number of things equally well during this brief period, while others, no less admirable, perhaps, but far less versatile, were pegging away at perfection in one line."

The English people are tired of hearing about the war, we are told, and, except in the case of some big, outstanding work, the war book has had its day and is done with. Colonel Repington's book, "The First World War," for instance, aroused much interest and has been very widely read. It was the first account of the war to give intimate information about it, to take people behind the scenes, and therefore they bought it and read it and talked about it as they are not doing about most war books. Except as other works of similar quality come along, revealing inside information of importance, the English public shows no sign of wanting to read books concerning the war.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Authors' League not long ago, Mr. Lowell Brentano lately broached a project for the more efficient advertising of literature. The Publishers' Association estimates that the average American family buys 600 newspapers and magazines a year and but one book. In the entire country there are only some 200,000 "persistent book buyers"—one-fifth of 1 per cent of the population. How to reach the other 99 4 5 per cent is the question?

It is a project that commands the co-operation of all who believe in higher education. One may not agree with Mr. Brentano that it is vitally necessary to lessen the number of those who think Rex Beach is a summer resort, but it is certainly desirable to keep them from asking "What are Keats?"

Dramatic Notes

Georges Flateau, a studious member of the American dramatic fraternity now, and who as a dramatic star in Paris was a delight to American visitors, finds much to commend to his new locals, but still he does not understand our Prohibition rules. "I suppose," he suggests, "that you will have to change the names of a lot of places in the United States now. My studies develop the intelligence that you still have here Rumley, Ind., Champaign, Ill., Brandywine, O., Brewersville and Bourbon, Ind."

The papers in a $5,000,000 damage suit against Henry Ford and his paper, the Dearborn Independent, was filed in Circuit Court last week by Morris Gest, theatrical producer, who alleged an article in the Independent on January 22 contained "libelous, slanderous and false statements" concerning Gest and certain stage productions he has handled. The article mentioned in the suit was said to have attacked "Aphrodite" and "Mecca" in particular, terming them the "most salacious spectacles ever shown in America."

"The Lilies of Mirones," written by Miss Josephine Carroll Brown and Janet Edith Brown, sorority sisters, has been chosen for this year's Partheuia at the University of California. The selection was made recently by a committee of students and faculty, and will be given late in the coming spring.

The masque will depart from tradition this year. The setting hitherto has been taken from Oriental, Egyptian or Grecian lands. The scene this year is laid in our own California. Irving Pichel, assistant manager of the Greek Theater, will direct the presentation. Faculty Glade has been chosen for the masque.

Through the efforts of Carmel's Community Club $1,049 30 has been collected to aid in relieving the distress among the children of Central Europe. Much credit is due to the members of the club and their friends for this liberal contribution. The per capita contributed is the largest of any city in Monterey county.

Six members of the Anita Stewart motion picture company were in Santa Cruz last week to take a murder scene which was shot along Zayante creek, near Mount Hermon. The main stunt was the pushing over the bridge of an auto, which fell 60 feet into Zayante creek below. The car, an old one stripped of its engine, etc., was brought from Los Angeles, and after it fell it was left in the creek. A Japanese actor figured in the murder scene.

Askew Family Entertains

Last Friday evening the Askew family entertained the Sunday School class of Carmel Church. The boys and girls assembled at Rev. Fred Sheldon's home, the girls being masked. Each boy was given a number and the girl holding the corresponding number was his partner. During the walk to the Askew's the boys were guessing with whom they were. Mrs. Askew awarded prizes to the boys who guessed right.

A variety of games were played and refreshments were served. While feasting, the lights went out, thus adding to the fun. When the party dispersed all felt that it was one of the best yet.

Thirty canvasses by E. Charlton Fortune depicting scenes in and about Carmel are on exhibition at the Helgesen galleries. This will be the last exhibit Miss Fortune will hold in this country before leaving for Scotland to exhibit at the National Academy in Scotland in March. "El Rancho del Carmelo," which all Carmelenos had the pleasure of seeing when shown at Arts and Crafts Club, is one of the pictures will be shown at the National Academy.
